Editorial Review

From Library Journal

Devotional writer Keller (Shepherd Looks at Psalm 23, Zondervan, 1994) explores the character of God by reflecting on selected attributes like truth, goodness, and righteousness. The God who emerges from these short devotional sketches is a gracious and loving Father who exercises infinite justice and mercy in taking care of his children. A rather effervescent exercise in Christian devotion. Recommended where Keller's works are popular.

From the Back Cover

Come Away to Rest in God's Care!

Too often we feel trapped in life's hectic pace. Or bewildered by loss and hurt. Or stuck in a dryness and complacency of soul. We are too hurried to sense the one thing we most need ? the love of the heavenly Father that transforms all it touches.

How do we experience the tender, challenging, renewing love of God--a love that dares us to come away from the world long enough to know the soul-refreshing touch of Life?

What is the Father Like?

Phillip Keller, one of the most beloved devotional writers of our time, leads us from the parched ground of daily life into the spiritually green pastures of the Father. He calls us to a place where we can once again

- hear the gentle, calming, assuring guidance of our Shepherd rise above the confusing noise of earth
- experience the safety and protection of the Almighty
- enjoy His peace, in place of fear, anxiety, and inner turmoil
- know the gift of His intimate presence.

If you have longed for inner strength...fullness...purpose...come and meet with the Father, and listen to His heart!

About the Author
